BOOM OF DRUMS.

Marking the Exodus of Republicans Bound for Washington.

The Lincoln Club the First to Start Potomacward.

John J, and the O'Brienites Will March on To-Morrow.

Boom! Boom! The big bass drum's deep note is heard in the streets, mingled with the blare of brass and the softer notes of wood instruments.

These sounds die away Jerseyward. The Republican faithful are on their way to Washington to witness the inauguration of their chosen man as President of the greatest republic on earth.

Many of the party trimmers, wire-pullers and high-muck-a-mucks have gone before, but it was not until to-day that the boys who are to tramp in the Inauguration Day parade began their hegira.

The Lincoln Club, of the Seventh Assembly District, was the first away on the 10 A. M. Washington Lamited express on the Pennavlvania road.

Headed by their commandant, State Senator Cornelius Van Cott, they marched from their rooms in Clinton place to the inspiring music of Bayne's Sixty-ninth Regiment the John J. O'Brien Association, will not leave until Sunday, as they want to do a little peacock strutting about the streets in the Fourth Judicial District to-night, to show off their fine raiment and big band.

The balance of the twenty-two clubs from this city which will swell the parade will leave on different trains to-morrow, without fuss or bother.

A Great Gathering of Men with Plenty of Muscle and Pluck,

All was animation and liveliness in Madison Square Garden this morning. A force of workmen was hammering, lifting and running about, and there was a general clearing up and a putting of finishing touches on the task of preparing the roomy old building for the games of the National Association of Amateur Athletes.

C. M. King, Chairman of the Games Committee, was on hand to see that everything was arranged in proper shape.

A number of the men who have entered with the hope of capturing a diamond prize or two had in some manner got hold of pro grammes, and there was a general scramble to find out how Walter Hegeman, the official handicapper, had placed them in their respec tive events.

Both of Mr. Hegeman's ears must have turned a fiery red at the same time, judging from the remarks of the enthusiastic competitors, but this is always the case with the handicapper, and Mr. Hegeman has, fortu-handicapper, and Mr. Hegeman has fortunately, become hardened to it.

This evening wiil be devoted to the final heats, and added to these will be an attempt by Joe Donoghue, America's champion akater, to lower the one-mile rollerskating records, an endeavor by Fred Westing, the champion 100-yard runner, to lower the record for seventy-five yards, and a threemile match race between Tommy Conneff and A. B. George, who came here last full

A DANBURY DOCTOR SUFFERING OF BELLA-DONNA POISON IN THIS CITY.

A man who, from the papers in his pocket, is believed to be Dr. Charles Smith, of Danbury, Conn., was found in a closet at the Sturtevant House about 8 o'clock this morn-

He was removed to the New York Hospite where it was ascertained upon investigation, that he was suffering from belladonna poison, evidently taken for suicidal pur-poses.

The man being exceedingly anxious to keep the matter from the public, the hospital authorities refused to deliver his papers to the police. Detectives were sent to the hospital to secure the papers, if possible, and make a prisoner of the doctor.

James Burgess, the burly West Indian accused of enticing her away was held for examination next Priday morning by Justice White, inthe Harlem Police Court this morning, in default of $2,500 bail.

A full account of Gracie's disapp was printed in THE EVENING WORLD yesterday. She was found by means of this brief telegram:

Am at the St. Omer Hotel. She sent it to Mrs. Smith, of 812 West Eighty-fourth street, about noontime yesterday. Miss Smith took the despatch at once to Capt. Berghold, of the West One Hundredth street station.

He sent Policeman Grosjean to the hotel at nce.

Gracie was comfortably installed there. Grosjean brought her to the police station, where she said that she had been induced to leave home by Burgess.

Graci,'s story, as related to an Eventno World reporter in the Harlem Court this morning, is as follows :

"I first became acquainted with Mr. Burgess last December, while selling tickets for a church feir. After that I went to see him frequently." "Did he ever address you improperly on

"Did he ever address you improperly on such occasions?" was next asked.

"No; that is he never said anything very naughty. He used to say it was a shame that I had not more enjoyment in my life, and frequently assured me that some day he would take me away forever and get me a nice little flat.

"I liked him, for he was always kind to me, and at Auntie Caroline's it was not very pleasant."

"Was that the reason you decided to run away?" asked the reporter.

"One of the reasons," she answered.

"Then I wanted a flat too, and nice furniture, and nice clothes, and Mr. Burgess promised me all that."

Last Monday she saw him at the coal-yard and he called her "dear" and said he had a flat rented, and wanted her to be ready to go to it Thursday evening.

"Did he send the negro for you?"

"No."

No." Who did?"

"There was no negro. I went outside and rang the door-bell myself. Then when Miss Lemel came up from the basement I banged the door shut quick, and told her a lie about a negro having called to tell me that Auntie Caroline was hurt. Poor Miss Lemel believed it, and I got out."

She naively told why she invented the story expire.

"When he got back to the station he met some friends and pretended not to know me at first. I showed out a ticket for him to take and then he seemed to notice me for the first time. He showed my hand away and said: "Why, Miss Irwin, good evening. Where are you going?"

Soon after his friends left him and he rode downtown with her. They got off at Twenty-third street and he sent her in to the St. Omer Hotel alone.

She registered as Grace Irwin. He followed soon after and registered as E. D. Brown. The hotel people say that they had no idea that he was in company with the girl.

Grace says that he shared her room with her, but only for a few hours, going away long before daylight. When leaving her he gave her $2, telling her to be patient until Saturday, when he would buy her some long dresses, and take her to the flat.

When going away he left his name and address on a card, telling the clerk to notify him in case of any trouble with the girl.

willingly. On the way to the station-house, he denied all knowledge of the girl or her wherealouts.

When confronted with her, however, the police say he broke down and admitted going with her to the hotel.

He denied, though, that he went to her room, and said he was only anxious to take her away from a home where she was habitually ill-treated.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children cared for the girl last night, while Burgess was locked up. His wife had a touching interview with him in court this morning. She believes in his innocence, This morning he denies even that he went to the hotel with the girl.

Assistant Supt. Stocking, of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, had the girl in court and she repeated her story to Justice White.

A complaint charging rape was then drawn up against Burgess. He seemed very calm, and plesaded not guilty.

Then Lawyer Botty, who appeared for him, asked to have the examination set down for next Friday, which was done.

Then Lawyer Botty, who appeared for him, asked to have the examination set down for next Friday, which was done.

Their affectionate demeanor seemed to surprise Henry and Simeon Irwin, aged nineteen and twenty respectively, the girls' brothers, who were also present.

Henry told the reporters a very harsh tale of Miss Smyth's treatment of them and Gracie when they lived with her. He said:

"Miss Smyth has a temper. My parents died in Dublin about ten years ago. Simeon went to Canada. Miss Smyth took my Ester Helen and Gracie, and brought them to this country. I joined them three years ago, and my brother came soon after from Canada.

"Mrs. Smyth ill-treated us. So did her brother George. We had to go out, Grace and I, late at night, after near midnight, delivering circulars of the school.

"My brother and I were ill-fed, whipped and had to get up at 5 a. M., chop wood, light fires and get our own breakfasts, although we paid $5 a week board each. When my parents were alive we lived in our own house, and had servants to wait on us.

"I am sure they left a great deal of property, for I have been told so, but we can get no account of it.

"Helen, Simeon and I had to leave her on account after ill treatment.

"She ill-treated Gracie, too, and I am sure that is why the poor little thing left home," he concluded.

ALMOST A KERR JURY.

The Eleventh Jurer Was Put Into the Bex Thie Morning.

Judge Daniels opened Court in the Kerr rial half an hour earlier than usual this norning, as it had to adjourn at noon, wishing to make a determined effort to get the renaining two jurors necessary to fill the box. Horace Greeley Knapp was the first to be examined by Mr. Semple as to his competency as a juror, and said that everything he had read about the bribing of the Aldermen had read about the bribing of the Aidermen of the year 1884, or of the former trials, had left no impression on his mind. He had, however, a bias against imprisonment in Sing Sing. He was acceptable to the defense, but was peremptorily challenged by the prosecution and stepped out.

After over a dozen failures the eleventh juror was secured at 11.15. He is James Meffer, a porter living at 95 Bleecker street.

The case was then adjourned until Monday.
